spyder

A reclining sofa with perfect functionality - two elements nested in a highly functional whole. One is the seating element, which can be lifted forwards by means of sophisticated technology to reach an ideal seating position. The other element is the refined backrest embedded in the seating surface. When folded back together with the now horizontal seating surface, this forms a couch. Another special feature of the backrest is the way the side "ears" can be brought slightly forward to achieve even more seating comfort.
